Flat Stanley went on a short holiday to Maz and Grandpa's farm. Lots of rain fell during Flat Stanley's visit. He liked it because he could play in the squelchy brown, soupy mud-puddles.

Then he sat on an old tractor which was parked in the machinery shed.

When he felt tired he rested on a fallen tree stump next to the grain silos.

Today Flat Stanley went to the sheep yards where he found some sheep penned up. They had been shorn so were quite lively. Flat Stanley sat on the rusty wire fence to watch them. 'Polly' the sheep dog licked his legs as he climbed on the quad bike to ride back to the house.

Stanley woke up this morning to find a large spider in his room. Stanley wasn't frightened but very interested in the hairy, grey spider.

Soon it was time to return to Berowra. Stanley had fun and good memories of his country visit.
